Health Wise

Health is tremendously important. People in the United States spend about $100 Billion a year trying to restore and maintain it. This nation's health facilities employ more people than any other industry except construction. Health is a top priority item, all right - but have you ever tried to define it?

"That shouldn't be too difficult," you may be thinking. But just give it a try; you'll find it isn't easy. In fact definitions of health have varied greatly through the years. Let's look at a few.

You're healthy if you don't feel sick." This idea once satisfied most people, even though it isn't true. A person may feel perfectly well and still be harboring a dangerous or even fatal condition in the body.

"Health is distance from death." That's an interesting concept, isn't it? When it comes to death, we'd all like to keep our distance.

Health is freedom from disease." Now that sounds like a simple statement of fact, doesn't it? But it only represents a very limited view of what health really is. We observe many people around us who are not afflicted with any specific disease or infirmity, yet some of them obviously enjoy a better level of health than others. Up to this point all of our definitions have actually been telling what health is not. Let's move away from these narrow and constrictive viewpoints to something more positive.

In 1947 the World Health Organization, established by the United Nations, put its prestige and influence behind a new approach to the understanding of health: "Health is a state of complete physical, mental, and social well-being and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity."

Perhaps health may best be thought of in terms of degrees. Sometimes, even though you are not suffering from a specific illness, you feel worn out. You are listless, and nothing seems interesting or particularly worthwhile. On the other hand, some days you are full of zip. Every cell in your body seems to be electrically charged, and its great to be alive. Right?

Now what makes the difference? Using one of the narrow definitions of health, you were "well" on both occasions. But it obvious that on some days you were "well-er" than on others. There are then degrees of health.

Any intelligent person who has a choice would surely opt for a life of dynamic bouyancy as opposed to a dregged-out, half existence. Well, we do have a choice. And the purpose of this column is to help you attain and maintain a state of high-level wellness.

Sponsored as a Community Service of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church. Address inquires to SDA Church, Rt. 2, Appomattox.

THE STEWARTS OF SHENNANDOAH will be at Piney Ridge United Methodist Church on Sunday, February 20th for the 11 a.m. service.

The public is cordially invited to join in for this service.

MARKETING QUOTAS PROCLAIMED FOR BURLEY MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA SUN-CURED TOBACCOS: REFERENDUMS CALLED.

On February 1, the United States Department of Agriculture proclaimed marketing quotas for the 1977, 1978, and 1979 crops of Burley, Maryland and Virginia sun-cured tobaccos and called for grower referendums to be held February 22 - 25.

The National marketing quota for the 1977 crop of burley tobacco was announced as 637 million pounds. When adjustments for over and under-marketing are taken into consideration, effective farm quotas for 1977 are expected to total about 700 million pounds. This is 4 percent less than last year.

The National acreage allotment for the 1977 crop of Maryland tobacco was announced as 33,479 acres. This compares with 23,000 acres of Maryland tobacco actually grown during 1976.

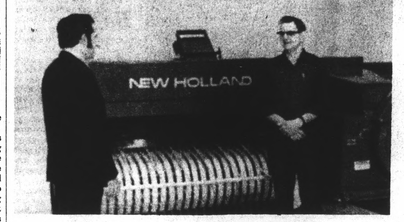
The Virginia acreage allotment for the 1977 crop of Virginia Sun-cured tobacco was announced as 1,576 acres. This compares with an acreage allotment of 1,621 acres in 1976.

In the referendums, growers will decide whether marketing quotas will be in effect on the next three crops of these tobaccos. In 1974 Burley and Virginia Sun-cured tobacco growers approved marketing quotas for the 74-76 crops, but Maryland tobacco growers disapproved marketing quotas for the 74-76 crops.

If at least 2/3 of the growers vote yes in these referendums, quotas will be in effect for the next three crops of these tobaccos and price supports will be available. If more than 1/3 of the growers vote no there will be unlimited production and no price support.

Notices showing the 1977 poundage quotas for Burley tobacco will be mailed to farm operators about February 18. Notices showing the 1977 acreage allotment for Maryland and Virginia Sun-cured tobacco will be mailed to farm operators in the near future.

Eligible voters will receive ballots and instructions through the mail prior to February 22nd. If there are any questions on voting eligibility please contact the ASCS office.



Shop Foreman Attended Training Program

B. Rice Moore, right above, shop foreman for Appomattox Truck & Tractor, Appomattox, has returned from a week-long training program at the Sperry New Holland Service Training School at New Holland, Penna. While at the training center he attended classes and service shop instruction sessions in the service and repair of the company's farm equipment.

Sperry New Holland service training schools utilize some of the most modern training facilities in the nation for instructing dealer and company servicemen in farm machinery repairs. The company is one of the world's largest farm equipment manufacturer. Providing quick, efficient service to farmers during critical harvest time is one of the company's top priorities.

National FHA/HERO Week, Feb. 6 - 12, 1977

The second week in February is a special week for members of the Appomattox Senior Chapter, Future Homemakers of America. This week, February 6 - 12, is NATIONAL FHA-HERO WEEK, held in conjuction with VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK. All across the country FHA and HERO chapters of Future Homemakers of America are planning observances focusing on the theme BUILDING THE SKILLS OF AMERICA.

Future Homemakers of America is one of six vocational education youth organizations. A part of the junior and senior high school home economics curriculum, it provides meaning and motivation for youth working toward educational goals related to consumer home economics and vocational home economics and reaches beyond the classroom instruction into the home and community.

During the week, according to Teresa Cyrus, chapter president, the Appomattox Chapter has planned the following:

Monday - spot radio announcement, sign proclamation.

Monday - Friday - wear emblem;

Tuesday - spot radio announcement, visit Training School, display window;

Wednesday - spot radio announcement, dress-up day;

Thursday - spot radio announcement, newspaper articles, go to Primary School as aides;

Friday - spot radio announcement, teacher's day;

Saturday - spot radio announcement, help a neighbor with household chores; and Sunday - go to church with family, notice on church bulletin.

Future Homemakers of America was founded as a national organization for home economics students on June 11, 1945. There are two types of chapters. FHA chapters place major emphasis on consumer education, homemaking and family life education combined with exploration of jobs and careers. The HERO chapters for students in home economics related occupations place major emphasis on preparation for jobs and careers with recognition that workers also fill multiple roles as homemakers and community leaders.

FHS is co-sponsored by the U. S. Office of Education through the Division of Vocational and Technical Education and The American Home Economics Association. High School home economics teachers, members of the state home economics education staff and leading home economists serve as advisors to chapter, state and national youth officers, giving guidance and conseling to the program.

The national headquarters is located in Washington, D. C.
